

New storyline, new website!

Contributed by Vorak
Tuesday, 01 July 2008

While this installment of Star Trek: Expansion has come to a close, we're not about to just go home and give up! Over the past few months, we've been writing up the premise to a whole new RPG (based in EF's reality, of course), and have built an entirely new website to match, as you can now see for yourself!

We invite you to have a look around... you'll find many areas of the old site back on this one too, but often with improved features. Remember that we are creating a whole new RPG here, with a whole new cast. Please, do not try to retain your character from this RPG, but rest assured, your character will still exist. Avalon Station and her fleet will go on, but we've gotten all we can out of this band of characters and ships, and it's time to move on.

So regardless of whether or not you were already a member of EF before, you will need to sign up again. Please do so on the HOME page FIRST, as the site is built to automatically create an account on the forums once you do this. When you sign up on the main site, you'll find that the forum has already signed you up and logged you in. Do NOT try to make an account on the forums independently, for our sake. It could cause some weird things to occur.

We wish you lots of roleplaying pleasure on the new Expansion Fleet website!